

GLASDON 'HERITAGE' ATTENDANT'S KIOSK

Repton

P A R K

Crest Nicholson Residential (Eastern) Ltd

Problem Identified

As part of their redevelopment of a listed Victorian building into prestige residential accommodation, Crest Homes wanted to provide an Attendant's Kiosk to control vehicular and pedestrian access to the site.

Local planning restrictions stated that a modern style of kiosk was unacceptable, so a suitable alternative to costly and time-consuming traditional building methods had to be found.

The Solution

Helen Watts, Sales Manager at Crest Homes, contacted Glasdon and arranged a site meeting with their Regional Sales Manager. Having assessed the site and planning restrictions it quickly became apparent that the traditional styling of the Glasdon Heritage range would be the ideal choice.

Resulting Benefits

The Glasdon Heritage range has provided Crest Homes with the perfect solution to meet their criteria:

- Traditional styling which enhances the surrounding environment and is acceptable to the local planning office.
- A design which offers a return to the visual quality of the past but has the advantage of today's modern and low-maintenance materials.
- A wide range of standard kiosks to choose from without the need to pay for the tooling costs which are often associated with custom-built projects.
- Pre-assembled delivery which keeps site disruption to the minimum.
- If site circumstances change in the future the kiosk can be simply relocated.

WHAT THE CUSTOMER SAYS:

The installation of a Glasdon Heritage kiosk at Repton Park was a complete success and Helen Watts, Sales Manager at Crest Homes, has this to say:

“This prestigious development required a structure of high quality which complied fully with local planning regulations. The traditional styling of the Glasdon Heritage kiosk blends in perfectly with the surrounding environment and the flexibility to relocate it will save us time and money in the future.

We are extremely delighted with our choice and would be very happy to use the products and services of Glasdon again should similar applications arise in the future.”
